

CPD-QI for Retrospective COVID Initiatives/ Learning Activities

Introduction

The COVID pandemic has challenged us all to be nimble and adapt both our personal and professional practices to the new and emerging context. As physicians, we have had to consider how to deliver quality patient care while at the same time providing proper equipment to the professional and non-professional staff we work with to ensure their safety. The commitment of our profession has shone through during this difficult time.

The changes physicians have made to deal with the 'new normal' were a required improvement to the way things were being done. While we might have said 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it', it was clear for many of us that that while our practice wasn't 'broke', the old way of doing things were for the most part no longer appropriate. It is a credit to all physicians and their teams that these improvements enabled the continuation of your practice to address your patients' needs.

To support you in documenting your improvement activities, the Royal College has developed this form for your personal use.

- 1. What is your Name:

- 2. What practice-based issue(s) required modification/ improvement during COVID?

- 3. What was the goal in trying to make changes?

- 4. What change(s) were made? Please describe

5. How do you know the change(s) worked? How effective was the change(s)?

If you have any quantitative data to support any improvement(s), please include.

6. What do you plan to do next? Please describe.

REFERENCE:

Health Quality Ontario. Quality Improvement Guide, 2012.

<https://www.hqontario.ca/portals/0/documents/qi/qi-quality-improve-guide-2012-en.pdf>